Democrats always have to create issues on which to conduct a campaign State or national. Republicans always have live issues on hand for approval of the people.

The "Old Guard" Democrats are singing a song called "Harmony." While Jim Reed plays the tune Senator Stone pleads with Joseph W. Folk to join in the refrain. Wonder if the popular ex-governor will be persuaded by the wily senator?

As the harmony conference of the Missouri Democrats draws nearer the signs of impending disaster to their party become more portentous and disturbing to the leaders. It seems to be up to Folk to surrender now or fight the dominant element of his party to a finish in 1910.

Missouri is more deeply interested in the improvement of the Mississippi river than any other state along its course. With a great metropolis to become a seaport and rich agricultural regions from Clark county to Pemiscot to be directly benefited, Missouri will be vastly enriched by deep water in the Mississippi.

The people of Missouri are progressive. They have been held back by the non-progressive policy of Democrats, who have governed the state for forty years. A new era has dawned and new politics will prevail. There is nothing in modern politics or modern statesmanship too good for Missouri.

Missouri has now an immigration commission organized for the work of advertising the state and increasing its population, and enterprising Democrats are giving it the glad hand. By the way, there are many thousands of wide awake Democrats in Missouri who are ready for more progressive methods for the benefit of the state.

Governor Hadley, with Governor Deneen of Illinois and Governor Sanders of Louisiana, headed the procession of 500 deep waterway advocates who called on the president at the White House last Thursday. Our Missouri governor is usually at the head of the procession. That's where he naturally belongs.

This week two advertising notices from the State University reached our desk. As they were not accompanied by a check, or a promise to pay, they were dropped into the waste basket. From now on, henceforth, and for evermore, the policy of this office shall be: No pay, no advertising. Nice complimentary and flattering letters are not accepted in lieu of cash at the bank, nor will our creditors accept them in payment for paper and material. It takes the "coin of the realm" to pay printers, machine operators, and paper bills, and as far as the Tribune is concerned, it will take cash to buy advertising for all these chronic advertising grafters who are, and for years have been, preying on the newspaper fraternity for publicity.

No, gentle Mr. Democrat, Governor Hadley has not proposed to re-create Missouri or to remould her people, because he could not do that if he would; but he is trying to induce his fellow citizens to make better use of what nature has done for this wonderful state and to create conditions under which they and their children may have more wealth, more comforts, better laws, and better government. He is not running for anything, nor is he running from anything. He wants to do something worth while for the people who elected him governor, and he wants the co-operation of wide-awake, broad-minded Democrats in the work he has undertaken.

John J. Cullum of this city will be a candidate for prosecuting attorney again next year. If the Democrats believe in awarding honor for loyalty and fidelity to the party, then Mr. Cullum will receive the nomination without opposition. Mr. Cullum has demonstrated here lately that he is a good lawyer and has been exceedingly successful in handling his cases. He is endowed with good common sense, and being conservative would make a fearless enforcer of the law. Upper Loutre asks that he be given the nomination without opposition, as he deserves it.—Wellsville Star.

If we are correctly informed Mr. Cullum's name is not on the Democratic County Machine Slate at this time. If he wants the Democratic nomination for prosecuting attorney, he will probably have to make a fight for it.

At a recent meeting of the Democratic County Committee S. S. Nowlin tendered his resignation as chairman and George McVey of Buell was elected to fill the vacancy. The reason for Mr. Nowlin's resignation will be better understood some time later, when he announces himself as a candidate for prosecuting attorney.—New Florence Leader.

Old Guard Politics.
 Some of the "Old Guard" leaders are now trying to honey around Governor Folk in an effort to get him to help them pull their chestnuts out of the fire. After opposing him in all of his reform movements during his four years of governor, and after defeating him by unfair means for United States Senator, they are now trying to induce him to join them in an effort to carry the state for Jim Reed, who has, in the past, made it a regular practice to denounce Governor Folk in language that would not go through the United States mails.

Can They Fool Folk.
 The so-called harmony meeting set for Kansas City on January 18th has been loaded in the interest of Jim Reed for United States Senator, and Governor Folk and his friends are expected to join in and help out on the chorus. It remains to be seen whether he and his followers can be made tools of by the "Old Guard" politicians.

Current vs. Flame.
 While the Democrats had charge of the Missouri penitentiary coal oil lamps illuminated the cells and the cell houses. The smell of the oil and the smoke from the lamp wicks made the prisoners sick and the use of the oil kept the whole prison in constant jeopardy from fire. As soon as the institution came under Republican control the lamps were thrown out and electric lights were installed, the current being supplied with prison machinery at a cost far below what had been paid for the supply of oil. This aptly illustrated the difference between Democratic and Republican Policies. The Democrats follow the candle and the tallow dip of their fathers; Republicans follow the electric current and keep up with the pace it sets.

The Delineator for January.
 Women writers make the Delineator for January the most important of the midwinter magazines. Mrs. Philipp N. Moore, president of the general Federation of Women's Clubs, explains what the club woman of the United States expects to accomplish during 1910. Marie Rappold, the grand opera star, who achieved fame without a foreign training, tells how "I Blazed the Way for American Singers." Mabel Potter Daggett gets down to bed-rock in "Suffrage Enters the Drawing-Room," in which she gives intimate pictures of the leaders in the new woman's movement. Mme. Teresa Carreno, the celebrated musician, gives her interpretation of Edward MacDowell's "Barcarolle." The clever writer, Minnie J. Reynolds, has a study of the liquor question, and in "Gone Dry" puts down some rather startling facts.

The January number is particularly strong in fiction. Rudyard Kipling's story, "The Conversion of St. Winfred," is the best of the series that he has written especially for the Delineator. Grace MacGowan Cooke's serial, "The Power and the Glory," becomes intense. Owen Oliver contributes a dainty, lovable story called "The Understudy." Perceval Gibbon is up to his high standard in "The Sense of Climax." Jay Cady has "Sylvester Abend."

Missouri Agricultural College

Wins at the International Live Stock Show.

The Missouri Agricultural College exhibited a calf bred on the college farm which won the Champion Calf prize at the great 1909 International Live Stock Show at Chicago. This calf, "Deserter," was a Hereford-Angus cross-bred steer. He won first in the class for grade steers of all breeds, first in the class for Angus grades, first in the College class over all pure bred and grade calves, and was finally made the Champion Calf of the Show. In addition the College won three Champion prizes, five first prizes, three second prizes, and five third prizes, all on cattle fed at the College. These fat cattle will be returned to the College and used in the Short Winter Course instruction which begins January 4th.

The Missouri boys, also won first on horse judging and an Armour Scholarship valued at $250.00. This scholarship will be awarded to some Agricultural College student who is working his way through the University.

Ben Tillman Kicks.

Senator Tillman has devised a new scheme for reducing his weight. When he awakens in the morning he throws his pillow to the floor and tries to kick the headpost of his bed. At first he was not successful but now he is able to drive his toes into what he calls the "dash-board" ten or fifteen times in succession. He says he has reduced his girth measurement three inches. Some of the friends of the South Carolinian who sought information concerning the exercise were told that it was not a pastime for mollycoddles. "You've got to kick like the very mischief, if you want to get results," said Mr. Tillman. A year ago Mr. Tillman was in poor health, but his new exercise has brought a return of his strength and it is possible he will take his pitchfork on a little spearing tour of the Senate this winter.

Have you noticed the nice work Mr. P. A. Torbett, Montgomery's Photographer, is now turning out? He is very busy now, but after the first of the year he will be glad to see you and make some nice pictures of yourself and family before the family is divided or gone forever.
